The Commission for Women's Equality of the American Jewish Congress

An Agenda for the 1990s

- Women's Equality
- Jewish Feminism
- Economic Equity
- Women's Health Issues
- Reproductive Rights
- Women's Safety in the Home and Community

"Proudly Jewish, Visibly Feminist, Actively Working for a Better World"
Commission Members work to achieve full equality for women by:

- Taking Action in the Courts, Congress, and State Legislatures
- Encouraging Political Activism
- Facilitating Pay Equity
- Fighting Job Discrimination and Sexual Harassment
- Assuring Abortion and Reproductive Rights
- Advocating Responsiveness to Health Issues
- Ending Violence Against Women
- Strengthening the Jewish Family
- Networking with Women in Israel and Around the World
- Speaking Out on International Affairs
- Mobilizing for Human Rights
- Participating Fully in Jewish Communal and Religious Life
The Commission for Women's Equality of the American Jewish Congress is an activist leadership group whose members are Jewish women and men in government, academia, business, the arts and Jewish communal services living and working in communities all across the United States.

Their goal is to vigorously pursue full and equal rights for women within a Jewish context.

Since its founding in 1984, the Commission for Women's Equality has had an extraordinary record of "firsts"---

- First to go public in the New York Times with a full-page ad in support of abortion rights
- First to sponsor the historic conference in Israel which resulted in the emergence of a strong women's movement there
- First to take on a major corporation - at a shareholders' meeting - to urge funding for family planning
- First to publish an international Jewish feminist directory
- First to hold a women's prayer meeting at the Western Wall
- First to initiate a conference on the economic status of women in the Jewish community
- First to do a survey of all female rabbis about sexual discrimination and harassment
Membership in the Commission for Women's Equality of the American Jewish Congress entitles you to:

- Legislative Updates and Action Alerts
